Editorial By Alex. H. Washburn

HOPE merchants representing practically every trade met at the city hall Wednesday morning prepared to go down the line for the NRA program. Friday morning at 10 o'clock we will see the second act of this city-wide organization when a mass meeting of citizens is called at the city hall to sign up consumers' pledges. Here is the heart of the NRA program.

Auxiliary Benefit for Crippled Child Thursday, Aug. 10

INFANT PARALYSIS

Daughter of Legionnaire a Sufferer Like American President

The 4-year-old crippled daughter of an Ozan legionnaire may walk again if plans to raise money at a benefit motion picture show in the Saenger theater Thursday, August 10, are successful.

The benefit picture, Al Jolson in "Hallelujah I'm a Bum," will be shown at the Saenger matinee and night, under the auspices of the American Legion Auxiliary.

Auxiliary committees are on the streets selling tickets. Only those tickets purchased from committees will go to the aid of the crippled little girl. The Auxiliary expects co-operation of individual members of the Rotary and Kiwanis clubs, both of which organizations lay emphasis on aid for underprivileged or crippled children.

The Ozan child is to be brought to Hope for an operation at a local hospital. The cost of the operation, hospital care, and special shoes for her twisted feet, all have been donated.

But expensive mechanical braces to correct her growing feet after the operation must be bought—and it is for this purpose that the Auxiliary is staging its benefit show.

The Ozan child is the victim of infantile paralysis, the same dread disease which scourged children and adults alike in the Eastern United States a few years after the World war, numbering among its victims the president of the United States, Franklin D. Roosevelt. Mr. Roosevelt, formerly an athlete, was robbed for a time of the use of his legs. But by continuous treatment and the exercise swimming afforded him, he largely recovered strength in his legs, and has set an object lesson for sufferers from this disease.

117 Cars Peaches Leaves Nashville

Recent Rains Aid Fruit in Size—Better Quality Is Shown

NASHVILLE.—The Elberta peach movement from the Highland District still continues, although a number of the orchardists have already stripped their trees of fruit. Practically all orchards will be stripped by Wednesday night.

Up to Monday morning 117 cars had been shipped from the district by rail from the Elberta crop, 82 of these cars going from Nashville sheds and 35 cars from the Highland sheds.

While it is impossible as yet to get an accurate estimate of the movement by trucks, orchardists report that fully twice as many peaches have been moved by truck as by rail, which would make the movement of Elbertas to date approximately 350 car loads, with a probable 50 car loads yet to move. The trucks have moved more of the fruit during the past few days than earlier in the season, due to the fact that the trucks were willing to pay nearer what the orchardists believed to be the right price than at first of the season, when efforts were made to secure the fruit at a very low price.

The peaches have been of exceptional quality and size during the past week due to the rains, which increased the size considerably and gave the peaches better quality.

75 Conversions for Spring Hill Revival

The greatest revival in the history of Spring Hill has just closed. The Rev. D. A. Williams, pastor-evangelist of Hope, did the preaching. Jerry Turner, choir director, and Gospel singer, led the beautiful song services. Mrs. Irene Foster was pianist.

Each service was a success. Something like 75 conversions and re-consecrations, 28 additions to the Methodist church and many added to the other churches, were reported.

A spirit of unity and co-operation prevailed among all denominations. A large class of converts were baptized at Collier's Lake Sunday at 3 p. m. Many middle-aged people came into the church, who had never manifested any interest before. Great sermons, great singing, great revival.

BILL ON TAX RELIEF

Flexible Proposal Offered to Get Legislature Into Action

LITTLE ROCK.—(AP)—Governor Futrell Wednesday set August 14 for the convening of a special legislative session in the event two-thirds of the members of each house reply affirmatively to three questions going out Wednesday over his signature.

The questions are:

1. Will you agree to vote for a fair and reasonable beer bill?

2. If not, will you vote for the emergency clause?

3. Will you vote to limit the expense of the session to $10,000?

Proposed Two Courses

LITTLE ROCK.—(AP)—Anxious to settle the question at once, Governor Futrell Wednesday proposed two alternative courses of procedure for hastening the call for a special legislative session to legalize beer and enact other legislation.

He made the proposals in a conference with Representative Bohlinger, Yell county, chairman of the joint legislative subcommittee on beer.

Another conference was to be held Wednesday afternoon to agree on the procedure to be followed.

Tax Relief, Public Works

One proposal was that substantial majorities of each house agree in advance to support tax relief and public work co-ordination measures, whereupon the governor would issue a call including these two subjects.

Then, after convening, the legislators could agree on the beer bill and he would issue a supplemental call.

As an alternative, the governor offered to call the session if the legislators would sign pledges to support tax relief and public works measures and the beer bill drafted by the special legislative committee, reserving the right to amend it in minor provisions.

Not to Mail Bill

LITTLE ROCK.—Because none of those interested has been able to obtain funds necessary for mailing copies of the beer bill drafted for the proposed special session of the legislature, the copies have not been sent to members of the legislature, Senator Edward B. Dillon of Pulaski county said Tuesday.

The beer subcommittee of the joint legislative committee appointed to draft the measure has been attempting to communicate with various members of the two houses, it was said, since it seems that the bill will not be distributed by mail.

Many members of the legislature have been in Little Rock during the past few days, and several of them were at the state capital conferring with officials Tuesday.

Chairman Neill Bohlinger of the beer subcommittee attempted to see Governor Futrell Tuesday but failed because of the monthly clemency hearing which occupied the entire afternoon at the governor's office.

Mr. Bohlinger said he would confer with the governor Wednesday to tell him what progress had been made in obtaining pledges of legislators to vote for the beer bill. Mr. Bohlinger declined to say how many pledges had been obtained.

Sheffield Fate Given to Jurors

Sims and LaFavers Are Found Guilty of Bank Robbery

ARKADELPHIA.—(AP)—The case of Dexter Sheffield, accused of robbery charges in connection with the robbery of the Citizens National Bank here last February, was given to the jury late Tuesday.

Sheffield was identified by two witnesses as the driver of the automobile in which the robbers escaped. Two men, Paul Melton and Cliff Masey, already have been convicted on charges growing out of this robbery and are serving 15-year sentences.

Jake Sims and Cornelius LaFavers were convicted Tuesday on charges of robbing the same bank last April 17 and their sentences left to the trial judge. A third man, Lewis Saddler, is awaiting trial for the April robbery.

After falling to a low of 10.13 the New Orleans cotton market reacted and shot back up to 10.43-50, closing at that figure Wednesday—a four-point gain from the previous close, Fenner, Beane & Ungerleider, Texarkana brokerage house, reported to The Star.

The rise is a gain of 20 cents per bale. The open Wednesday was 10.43-42, and the high was 10.62.

After quiet trading during the day, many shares of stock rallied within the last hour, showing substantial gains from the previous close.

New Orleans Court Proceeds With Recount of Ballots

NEW ORLEANS, La.—(AP)—The forces of Huey Long's political faction were routed Wednesday in criminal district court where they had appeared to uphold the right of the grand jury to return no-bills on an investigation of charges of fraud in last November's vote on constitutional amendments sponsored by Long's machine.

Judge O'Donnell earlier appointed 14 citizens to count the votes in the six contested boxes opened at the direction of District Attorney Stanley.

Later, Judge Echezebal, of another section, holding session in the next room, discharged the grand jury from further service as not being qualified to function further because of numerous controversies.

Melon Picnic Plan Is Cancelled Here

Program Dropped, But Festival Is to Be Revived in 1934

Hope's Watermelon Picnic, proposed as a successor to the famed Watermelon Festival and scheduled for the latter part of this month, has been cancelled, the committee announced Wednesday afternoon after an executive session held Tuesday night at the city hall.

Lack of time and the need of co-operation in which to stage the picnic was given as a reason for cancelling the celebration, Sid Bundy, manager of the program, announced.

Money donated to help sponsor the picnic will be refunded.

It was agreed at the meeting Tuesday night to have joint committees of local civic organizations to start work early in January to revive the famed festivals with a big celebration some time in August of next year.

The proposed watermelon picnic was arranged by a joint committee including Kiwanis and Rotary clubs, and the local baseball organization.

The joint committee comprised the following:

Kiwanis club: Sid Bundy, Dewey Hendrix and A. E. Stonequist.

Rotary club: L. Carter Johnson, Carson C. Lewis and Alex. H. Washburn.

Guardsmen Keep Coal Field Peace

Johnson Makes Speedy Visit to Capital of Pennsylvania

BROWNSVILLE, Pa.—(AP)—With national guardsmen training machine guns onto trouble zones in southwestern Pennsylvania's soft coal area where upward of 30,000 miners are on strike, the situation was quiet Wednesday.

No disorders were reported, but at Star Junction, where six were wounded Tuesday, 1,000 or more pickets taunted the company police.

The quiet was accentuated by the decision of the Frick company (to close all its mines until protection is guaranteed the workers).

The appearance of Recovery Administrator Hugh Johnson in Harrisburg Wednesday to make a speech was watched with interest for possible developments in the state capital having a bearing on the soft coal crisis.

GARDEN CITY, N. Y.—(AP)—Chester S. (Boss) Lord, aged 83, managing editor of the New York Sun in those legendary days when Charles A. Dana was its editor, and Arthur Brisbane, Samuel Hopkins Adams, Carr Van Anda and Will Irwin were reporters, died Tuesday.

Lord retired in 1913 after guiding the Sun through 33 years that saw the Cleveland-Blaine campaigns, the Spanish-American war, the Wall Street scandals of early days, the panic of '33, the exposure of Boss Tweed, the sinking of the Titanic and the San Francisco earthquake.

Consumers' Meet Is Called for 10 O'Clock on Friday

Dry Good Stores to Keep Hours of 8 to 6—Grocers 7 to 6

FOR EVERY CITIZEN

NRA Individual Pledges to Be Signed Up Friday Morning

Hope merchants 200 strong met at the city hall Wednesday morning to subscribe to the National Recovery Act and fix hours for store business in the various trade lines.

Merchants must comply with the NRA regulations in Hope before Friday morning, August 4, when a mass meeting for the entire city has been called at 10 o'clock. At this time the first list of those signing, and those refusing to sign, will be made public; and all citizens will be enrolled in the NRA cause.

The rally at 10 a. m. Friday at the city hall will be a "consumers' meeting," designed to force all retail businesses into the NRA through fear of a boycott, as suggested by the president.

Wednesday morning's meeting was called in behalf of the old Chamber of Commerce organization and all the civic groups of Hope, at the request of Recovery Administrator Hugh Johnson.

After an explanation of the general terms of the NRA by Alex. H. Washburn, specific points were taken up by E. F. McFadden.

Store Hours

Separate caucuses were called for the general retailers, grocers and hardware men to fix store hours. These reported back to the general meeting as follows:

General retailers—8 to 6 daily, and 8 to 9 on Saturday.

Grocers—7 to 6 daily, and 7 to 9 on Saturday (no Sunday operation).

Hardware—Unannounced.

Barbershops—Meeting at 2 p. m. Wednesday at the city hall.

Cleaners and pressors—Meeting at 2 p. m. Wednesday at city hall.

Motor and service station men—Meeting at 8 p. m. Wednesday at city hall.

Druggists—Unannounced; Hope firms are compiling a local code.

Wednesday's meeting was divided on the question whether all business houses should be governed by the same opening-and-closing schedule, or each line of business should choose its own hours.

Each line discussed its own problems separately, but on reporting to the general meeting the caucuses were met with a motion by Dorsey McRae, hardware man, that the general meeting vote on the proposition to regulate all businesses with one set of closing hours.

On a rising vote, however, the report of the individual trade lines was accepted by about three to one.

Purchasing Drive

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—Plans for a nation-wide purchasing drive to supplement the government work-spreading and wage-raising campaign were disclosed Wednesday by Recovery Administrator Johnson in opening a hearing on the code for the cotton garment and kindred industries.

"We know that unless your goods are moved off your shelves you cannot keep up your part in this program," Johnson said.

"The time is approaching," he declared, "and I think it is almost here, when I am going to supplement our present program by adding a request to all consumers that they spend for re-employment."

Calls on Business Men

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—More than 600 of the nation's business leaders were called to service Tuesday night by President Roosevelt to push forward the campaign for national recovery.

Signaling the formal opening of the fifth months emergency re-employment drive, nine members each of 48 state committees and seven members each of 26 district boards were asked to undertake the work of getting "every patriotic American citizen, employer and consumer to co-operate in this program."

Hugh S. Johnson, Industrial Recovery administrator, made the announcement while reports came from all over the land that the N. R. A.'s blue eagle insignia was appearing in thousands of store windows.

YOUR CHILDREN

By Olive Roberts Barton

Dear Children:

Quite-Lazy was a gnome and he lived in a little rock cave under the green waterfall.

Quite-Lazy lay a minute staring at the cool water curving out like a glass wall in front of him. Then he sat up and blinked. What was that dark shadow in the water that kept bobbing up and down?

A fish! Well, that wasn't so surprising in one way. Many fish came down with water and landed in the cave below. But this fish was not alone, down—he was going up. He was climbing the falls just as a fly climbs up a door.

Quite-Lazy watched. The fish tried over and over again but each time he would fall back. But at last he gave up and lay on his back. This time he stayed up. Quite-Lazy knew the fish was swimming away, although he couldn't see him.

Taking Life Easy
 "My goodness!" said the little gnome. "He worked very hard to get there. How silly! Nothing is worth so much hard work. The easier you take life the better you feel."

Quite-Lazy finally rolled out of bed. He didn't smother. He didn't dress, because now he remembered he hadn't undressed the night before. He found some left-overs, and munched at them instead of getting some decent food for his breakfast.

But one thing he did do. He was curious about that fish. So he climbed the rocks, sitting down every minute or so to get his breath, and finally he reached the creek where it spilled itself over.

And there in a pool of clear water was the fish nibbling at some water-hyacinth that grew there.

"Did you do all that work just for a taste of water-hyacinth?" asked Quite-Lazy scornfully.

"Certainly," said the fish. "Anything worth having is worth going after. Besides it's good for me to try hard things. I feel better. And I am getting very strong and very quick."

"I just like easy things," said Quite-Lazy. "I don't like to work. I think it's foolish."

Saved in Time

Just then a mink made a dart into the water, but the fish was too quick for him and swam away. Then the mink climbed out on the bank and reached for Quite-Lazy. You see he was after his breakfast too! But Quite-Lazy had forgotten how to run. It would have been the end of him but the fish reached out and dragged him down into the water. He swiftly rode the little gnome on his back to the other shore and Quite-Lazy scrambled for home.

Quite-Lazy did some thinking. "I guess if you do hard things it makes you quick and strong," he said to himself. "And it comes in useful. If you never want to work it makes you kind of stupid and slow. And when you get stupid and slow anything is likely to happen."

I'm glad he learned some sense, aren't you, children? It is silly to be lazy, not silly to work. The smart fish had the right idea. He was right in every way. What is worth having is always worth working for; besides in the end it helps in many other ways as well.

Five Preparations Every Woman Needs for Her Dressing Table

Every woman needs five preparations on her dressing table. These, of course, are in addition to powder, rouge and other make-up.

A good cleansing cream is all important. Select one that has a thin texture. It should liquefy the minute it touches your skin. Use it at night to remove the grime and dust of the day and again in the morning before you apply make-up. You can use cleansing cream and then rinse your face several times with warm water. If you simply can't get along without soap and water, use it first and then the cleansing cream.

Tissue cream is an asset to any complexion. It should be composed of oils—not animal fat—and is to be used at night after your face is clean. Every woman over thirty needs to use a tissue cream at least four nights a week. It puts natural oil back into your skin and keeps your complexion soft and unlined.

WASHINGTON LETTER

Dern Icked by Ickes

War Secretary Issues Blast

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
 NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON—Secretary of War George H. Dern functions under the aegis of the god Mars.

So it seemed fair enough that he should be the one to break into print with what appeared to be the first public break between a couple of cabinet members.

And it's fine to have as the Army's head a man who doesn't know when he's licked.

But Dern simply can't have that six or eight hundred billion dollars the War Department wants from the $3,300,000,000 public works fund.

He announced that he had been dissatisfied with the action which he anticipated was about to be taken by the public works board on the Army request for $135,000,000 for barracks and that was taken as a howl at Secretary of the Interior Ickes, chairman of the board.

Ickes simultaneously insisted that approved projects must be sane from both engineering and social viewpoints and "offer return in money or services to the community."

Dern's outburst was partly the result of pique and partly for purpose of propaganda. Army requests for specific grants were being shoved off to sub-committees and he wanted to drum up support from the powerful "Army lobby."

He did stir up favorable pressure, but he also roused the pacifists, who marched to Ickes protesting the $50,000,000 sought for military motorization and other items for airplanes and ammunition.

The board meanwhile had studied a partial army engineers' program of $275,000,000 for rivers and harbors and flood control, loped off about $100,000,000 and sent the balance to the White House for approval.

"Pork!" said Roosevelt of some of the projects as he sent the program back for further slashes.

Then he investigated the dispute between Dern and Ickes, since he didn't want any cabinet members fighting openly. He decided that Dern had been fairly treated.

No NRA Badges

There will be no official badges in the NRA propaganda campaign, according to latest word from GHQ. Just stickers. The explanation is, in case you understand it, that "we decided the kind of people who would want to wear the badges were the kind of people we wanted to appeal to."

Also, managers of the drive have been put on the defensive by several members of the NRA staff who object to any crude forms of ballyhoo and pressure.

A Governor's Troubles

Governor Ruby Laffoon of Kentucky, who was taken for a fast ride here despite the fact that he had made "colonels" of many prominent figures in the administration, returned home convinced he needed a "brain trust" of his own.

The powers here demanded that he should call a special session of his legislature: 1. To provide for a repeal vote. 2. To vote state unemployment relief funds, lest Washington cut off federal grants. 3. To create a satisfactory state highway administration if Kentucky wanted any public works highway funds.

Ruby apparently saw the point. He planned to draw on the University of Kentucky for his "brain trust" (Copyright, 1933, NEA Service, Inc.)

importance along with your other creams and lotions. It tones the skin and prepares it for makeup. Always apply it with clean cotton pads after you have cleansed your face. It removes excess cleansing cream and is a mild stimulant.

Have an astringent for your chin and neck. Apply it to your chin by means of a pater and to your neck with a cotton pad. It keeps necks from becoming flabby and chins from developing into sets of two and three.

A powder base is essential, too. There are various kinds, ranging from the ubiquitous vanishing creams to liquids. A liquid powder base is more in favor than a cream. Use it on your nose, forehead and chin before you powder.

by KATHARINE HAYLAND-TAYLOR

BEGIN HERE TODAY
 ELINOR STAFFORD, 29, falls in love with BARRETT COLVIN, 35, but her jealous, scheming mother, LIDA STAFFORD, breaks up the romance by convincing Barrett that Elinor is a heartless flirt.

When Elinor's aunt, wealthy MISS ELLA SEXTON, dies she leaves her fortune to Barrett. Then bankrupt VANCE CARTER shoots BENJAMIN STAFFORD, Elinor's father. Barrett tells Elinor that if she will marry him and live in his home as a guest for a year he will give her the entire Sexton fortune to divide among her relatives. Knowing the money may save her father's life, Elinor agrees.

The marriage takes place. Barrett, in spite of Lida's lies, finds himself more in love with Elinor than ever. Barrett has a ward, nine-year-old GERALD MOORE, who is the son of his half-sister, Marcia Radnor. Barrett has promised Marcia never to reveal the boy's true story. Lida Stafford discovers the child's existence.

Elinor's father, Barrett, takes her to Cuba and the trip is a happy one. After their return Lida tells Elinor about Barrett's ward, inferring the boy is Barrett's son.

Elinor asks about the child but, because of his promise to Marcia, Barrett cannot explain. Misunderstandings between the two increase. Barrett decides to join an expedition to South America. Elinor finds a house in the country and plans to go there and make a home for the boy. Marcia's infant son dies.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XLV

ELINOR broke the silence. She said in a hesitating, uncertain tone, "Barrett—"

He turned toward her. "Yes?" he answered.

"Do you want—very much—to go on that expedition?"

"No, but I thought perhaps you'd rather have me out of the way. That was the only reason I considered it."

"I'd rather you didn't go," she said slowly.

"Oh, Elinor!" He had risen and stood with eager, pleading eyes fixed on hers.

But she was not yet ready to tell him the truth—that she loved him and wanted his happiness more than her own, that she wanted him near when their child was born.

"I think you ought to become better acquainted with your boy—with Gerald," she said, her voice hard again.

"You mean that I should be with you in the country?" he questioned quickly.

"Yes. Don't you think so?"

"If it won't bother you to have me there," he said slowly. For a moment he had hoped for so much more than that. He added, still in that weary tone, "I love you more deeply than you'll ever know, Elinor. The one thing I want is your happiness."

Then quickly he left the room. Elinor cried stormily, sitting huddled in the big chair which made her look so small. For the first time since her mother had told her about Barrett's ward, shame prompted some of those tears. She was small, she knew. Small! And she could not seem to help being so. If she stretched a hand toward Barrett she would see another misty hand go out to him. If she dreamed of kissing him again she saw another woman held close in his arms.

She groped her way upstairs later and for a time in her room stood by the closed door, wanting to open it. She wanted desperately to say to Barrett, "I love you, I love you! I want you to be happy. That's all that matters!"

But she could not do it.

DAYS passed in which Elinor shopped to equip the new house in the country. She began the task eagerly, glad to have something to occupy her time, something to think about. Soon, however, that first interest paled. She could not take heart in furnishing a home where Barrett and she were to meet as strangers. And she could not forget the misery in her heart while salesmen and women displayed draperies, furniture and rugs.

Bessie Throppe came to the rescue. Bessie was constantly at hand with helpful advice. For her the shopping expeditions were a source of delight that would have been quite complete if Bessie had not been worried about Elinor. She didn't like the girl's listlessness and disinterest. It wasn't anything that one could talk about and that made the situation worse.

Small Gerald arrived to take his place in the household and, from the moment she first saw him, Elinor's heart warmed toward the child. He, at least, was in no way responsible for the state of affairs.

All three of them went out to the home in the country. Higgins went with them and soon had the household routine running smoothly and efficiently. There were duties to occupy much of Elinor's time, hours she spent with Bessie and hours with Gerald. A small room on the ground floor had been fitted up as a study for Barrett and he did much of his work there, though he drove to the city frequently.

One evening after a long day of work at his desk he wandered to the porch at the side of the house where Gerald, with Elinor's help, was making a fish net from some bits of string. Just as with human relations, the string would tangle disastrously now and then.

"Sexton and I are going fishing tomorrow," Gerald told him, "and Aunt Elinor's helping me make this net." He was struggling over it and his speech slowed with the struggle.

Barrett looked down at the work and workers, his heart touched. Elinor had done so much for the small boy. He was like a different child since they had come here and he adored Elinor.

FROM down the hill Sexton whistled a bob-white call—the boys' secret signal which half the neighborhood understood perfectly.

Gerald was up in an instant. "It's Sexton," he said eagerly. "May I go Aunt Elinor? We have to dig bait!"

"Of course, dear," she answered, "but be back in time to make yourself tidy for dinner." He kissed her, made a pugnacious, boyish pass at Barrett and was off, whooping down the hillside.

The strain settled that always appeared when Gerald left them alone together.

"May I sit down?" Barrett asked. "I want to talk to you about something."

"Do," she said, head bent above the net.

"I wondered if you wouldn't like to ask Bob Telford out for some week-end—or perhaps longer," he suggested. It wasn't easy but he had done it! Thank God, he'd managed to get the words out.

"Bob's been a good friend," Elinor answered levelly. "I'd like to have him come but not unless you care to have him—"

"Your home is the place for your friends," Barrett said. "It's your home, too."

"Let's have him next Sunday if he'll come."

"If you like," she agreed. He could not help but warm to the fact that she seemed to care so little. "I'm still rottenly jealous," he thought remorsefully.

"Did you see Marcia when you were in town yesterday?" Elinor asked. She had hardly seen Barrett since his return. She and the Thropes had had a moonlight picnic on the beach the night before and when they had returned Barrett had been working.

ELINOR had learned, seeing the door of his study closed, that her whole day had been lived through with the thought of a moment's talk with him. The closed door had made her feel like a child for whom there is no convincingly close tomorrow. She had gone to bed to lie there wakefully thinking, "He may be at work again before I get down in the morning—unless I'm up early."

Barrett preferred to avoid encountering her unless it was necessary. Seeing her made everything so much more difficult. A hundred times he had been close to blurring out the truth of Marcia's secret. He wanted to tell her, to say, "What do I care about a promise? What do I care for honor? Nothing matters to me but you and your love!"

But he could not allow himself to do that. He had made his vow to Marcia.

Now he said in answer to Elinor's question about Marcia, "I ran in to see her for a few minutes."

"How are things?"

"Bad," he told her. She caught her breath. Fright darkened the blue eyes. "Poor Marcia!" Elinor whispered.

"Yes, poor girl! Dick's about at the end of his rope. He wants her to get out of the house, begin to take some interest in life, but she doesn't want to. Twice he's found her in the nursery unconscious—"

Barrett studied Elinor then with a deep concern. He had noticed before how deeply distressed she seemed over Marcia's tragedy and he troubled him.

"Marcia has spoken of coming out here to see you," he said quickly.

"I'd be glad to have her," Elinor said warmly. "Tell her to come any time."

Again she raised her eyes to Barrett's and again he thought, "What do I care for a promise? How can I keep a vow that is making you miserable?"

But he did not tell her. Instead, with a few surmised words, he went back to his study. (To Be Continued)

Attorney E. F. McFadden was a Tuesday business visitor in Lewisville.

A most interesting meeting of the B. & P. W. club was held at 7:30 Tuesday evening, with Miss Teresa Urban as hostess at her home on West Sixth street. The business period was in charge of the president, Miss Maude Lipscomb. Plans were made to attend the meeting of the Fifth District Conference at Mountain Valley hotel, near Hot Springs on August 12 and 13. Following the regular routine of business, Miss Urban introduced Miss Jean Laeter, who gave a very comprehensive report of the Biennial Convention of the National Federation of B. & P. W. clubs, convening early in July in Chicago. Interesting talks on their recent visit to the Century of Progress Exposition in Chicago were made by Mrs. Frank Hicks, Miss Maude Lipscomb and Miss Jack. At the close of the meeting the hostess served a tempting sandwich course with iced tea.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Shields and two daughters, who have been guests of Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Williams and other relatives left Monday for their home in Los Angeles, Calif.

John Clyde Hill was host on Tuesday evening, to a newly organized social club among the younger set, at his home on North Pine street. Delightful refreshments were served at the close of a most pleasant evening.

Dr. and Mrs. Paul W. Wilson and little daughter, Nan Claire, of Little Rock were visiting with Mr. and Mrs. Robert Wilson and other relatives.

While this does not come up to the suggested blanket code, or tentative plan for a code for all lumber processors, it does represent a greater step toward the minimum wage suggestions than have been taken by other lumber firms in Southwest Arkansas, so far as Hope Star could learn.

Before putting Wednesday's hour reduction into effect the local firm attempted to secure joint action on the part of two other larger lumber mills in Southwest Arkansas for a similar change. Both refused, Mr. Williams said.

The local firm hopes increased plant efficiency will take care of a part of the cost, and believes lumber processors will soon agree on a code that is acceptable to Johnson, national director of the N. R. A. These processors submitted a code calling for a minimum of 25¢ per hour for Southern mills, with 22½¢ for mills in the smaller towns. Johnson turned this down, asking for the same rate of pay which has been effected in the Pacific northwest lumber mills, that of 40¢ for large mills, and 37½¢ in smaller concerns. These Pacific mills are asked to conform to the same scale as Eastern and Northern mills.

The standard minimum since recent wage increases in neighboring and local mills is 13½¢ per hour.

a continuing rush of employers to present their agreements to the hour-shortening and wage lifting movement and to receive the credentials that marked them as co-operators with the administration.

More Codes Drawn
Meanwhile, General Johnson and his aides labored into the night on separate codes for industries that will implement the presidential agreements. He announced that a hearing on a code of constitution for the coal industry would begin August 14 and on that for automobiles about the same time.

He said in his press conference that if any reports of violations of codes already adopted by employers were authenticated to him he would take very prompt action to the maximum of the law if necessary. He was referring particularly to complaints that labor provisions had been violated by some textile mills.

Johnson acted for President Roosevelt in calling upon the 614 persons to co-operate, and sent the following telegram to each:

"President Roosevelt has drafted you as one of the nine members of the state Recovery Board for the state of Arkansas, as explained in bulletin number three of the July 20, 1933.

"He has requested you to volunteer your services without compensation in this great drive for national rehabilitation."

"As a member of this board your duties will be to get every patriotic American citizen, employer and consumer to co-operate in this program. Please wire acceptance immediately and you will receive further instructions."

The state board would meet at the call of the governor.

At 8 p. m., Governor Futrell formally will welcome Senator Robinson home, after which Dr. J. H. Reynolds, president of Hendrix College at Conway, will introduce the senator for his address.

Chevalier Comes to Saenger Thursday

Paris Playboy Captivated by Street Waif in "A Bedtime Story"

Maurice Chevalier, debonair as ever, plays a new kind of role in his latest picture, "A Bedtime Story," which comes Thursday and Friday to the Saenger.

Maurice is the same Paris playboy, carefree and irresponsible, but the pursues is a real, genuine one-year-old, and not the 20-year, blonde, feminine type of the past.

Helen Twelvethrees, Edmond Everett Horton, Adrienne Ames, and Baby Leroy, the Los Angeles youngster who won the role in competition with several thousand other youngsters of his own age, head the cast which supports the French star.

The story opens with Maurice's return to his Paris apartment, after a voyage to Africa, and his discovery that someone has abandoned a baby in his car. He calls the police to take it away, but by the time the gendarmes have arrived, he has become so amused and delighted by the youngster that he won't hear of getting rid of it.

Maurice sings several new numbers and the picture reaches a hilarious climax as Chevalier, accompanied by his entire menage, including the baby, the nurse and the valet, goes to the house of his fiancée for a week-end.

Sylvia Sidney Fears Film Career Near End

NEW YORK—(AP)—Sylvia Sidney, dark-eyed motion picture actress, fears she may have to undergo an operation which would disfigure her and end her career in the films.

Arriving here after an airplane trip Tuesday from Hollywood, she said that was the explanation of her abrupt walkout from the Paramount studio where she was making a picture with Maurice Chevalier.

The actress underwent an operation in Hollywood for a throat ailment. It will take several days, she said, to determine whether that operation will take.

"If it doesn't," she said, "I'll have to have another operation for the complete removal of a gland, which will leave a scar on the outside of my face."

The faculty personnel probably will be the same as that of last year.

Why

Chesterfields are as good as Science and Money can make them

Every pound of Domestic tobacco used in Chesterfield cigarettes is aged for thirty months—2½ years. Science knows there is no other way to make cigarette tobaccos mild and mellow.

Every process used in the manufacture of Chesterfield cigarettes is modern, scientific and clean—visitors are always impressed with the cleanliness of the Chesterfield factories.

Every ingredient, including the paper, is pure—nothing that you eat or drink is tested more carefully.

And Chesterfields are made right; the right length, the right diameter, and filled right—a detail perhaps, but if a cigarette is "to satisfy" it must be made right.

Everything about Chesterfield is as good as money can buy or Science knows about—you have our word for this.

And Chesterfields are milder and taste better—this much you can prove for yourself.
